

Some examples of misclassification using our classification systems.

Annotated_class: Discuss

Misclassification: Agree

Headline: Iraqi Army Downs Two British Planes Carrying Weapons for ISIL Terrorists

Summary text: “The Iraqi Parliament’s National Security and Defense Committee has access to the photos of both planes that are British and have crashed while they were carrying weapons for the ISIL,” Head of the committee Hakem al-Zameli said, according to a Monday report of the Arabic-language information center of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq. The senior Iraqi legislator further unveiled that the government in Baghdad is receiving daily reports from people and security forces in al-Anbar province on numerous flights by the US-led coalition planes that airdrop weapons and supplies for ISIL in terrorist-held areas. Earlier today, a senior Iraqi provincial official lashed out at the western countries and their regional allies for supporting Takfiri terrorists in Iraq, revealing that US and Israeli-made weapons have been discovered from the areas purged of ISIL terrorists. He said the coalition’s support for the ISIL is now evident to everyone, and continued, “The coalition has not targeted ISIL’s main positions in Iraq.” In October, a high-ranking Iranian commander also slammed the US for providing aid supplies to ISIL, adding that the US claims that the weapons were mistakenly airdropped to ISIL were untrue.

---

Headline: Hackers tell Sony wise to cancel film, don't make more trouble -CNN

Summary text: Brian Stelter from CNN just reported that hackers sent Sony executives an email telling them they made the right decision by canceling The Interview. According to CNN, the email reads: It is very wise that you have made a decision to cancel the release of the interview. We still have you sensitive and private data. We ensure the security of your data, unless you make additional trouble.

---

---

Annotated_class: Agree

Misclassification: Discuss

Headline: Apple to shut down Beats Music? Not so Apple says

Summary text: SAN FRANCISCO -- Apple plans to shut down streaming service Music Beats, according to a published report. Several prominent employees at Apple and Beats told TechCrunch that Apple planned to discontinue the service. Apple spokesman Tom Neumayr told Re/code the TechCrunch report is "not true". Apple bought the service started by Jimmy Iovine and Dr. Dre in May for $3 billion. At the time it had a few hundred thousand subscribers.

---

Headline: Tesla to Choose Nevada for Battery Factory

Summary text: Tesla Motors, the electric car maker, is planning to build its giant battery Gigafactory in Nevada after a five-state competition, a source who asked not to be identified confirms. The plant will make advanced batteries expected to power Tesla's next generation of electric cars. The announcement comes after a weekend in which California's legislature adjourned without acting on a bill that could have delivered economic incentives to try to lure Tesla into building its battery plant in the Golden State. The maker has indicated it was on a tight schedule to make sure the plant is running in time for start of production of its third model, the Model III, which would be aimed at mass-market car buyers. At present, Tesla makes only a single electric car model, the Model S, and is about to start production of an electric crossover, the Model X.

---

---

Annotated_class: Disagree
Misclassification: Discuss

Headline: Raven Symoné Files Molestation Charges Against Bill Cosby

Summary text: Amid the growing number of women accusing Bill Cosby of sexual assault, was one, Lachele Covington, who worked with him on The Cosby Show. "I was NOT taking [sic] advantage of by Bill Cosy when I was on The Cosby Show!" she wrote in an Instagram post on Wednesday. Cosby's supporters have been few and far between amid the growing chorus of allegations. As Radar has reported, he's taking a hit to his career, as well, with NBC scrapping their planned sitcom with him, and Netflix postponing a planned stand-up special with the comedian. Story developing.

Body text: Amid the growing number of women accusing Bill Cosby of sexual assault, was one, Lachele Covington, who worked with him on The Cosby Show. But after RadarOnline.com revealed the shocking allegations she told police about her boss, another co-star, Raven-Symoné, is speaking out about what exactly happened behind the scenes. "I was NOT taking sic advantage of by Bill Cosy when I was on The Cosby Show" she wrote in an Instagram post on Wednesday. "I was practically a baby on that show and this is truly a disgusting rumor that I want no part of! "Everyone on that show treated me with nothing but kindness," she wrote. "Now keep me out of this!" Cosby's supporters have been few and far between amid the growing chorus of allegations. As Radar has reported, he's taking a hit to his career, as well, with NBC scrapping their planned sitcom with him, and Netflix postponing a planned stand-up special with the comedian.

---

Headline: Argentina's President Didn't Adopt A Jewish Child To Avoid Becoming A Werewolf; So What Did She Do?

Summary text:

President Christina Fernández de Kirchner met Yair Tawil and his family at her office last week to mark the unusual ceremony, which dates back more than 100 years. According to Argentinian folklore, the seventh son born to a family turns into the feared “el lobison”. The werewolf-like creature shows its true nature on the first Friday after boy’s 13th birthday, the legend says, turning the boy into a demon at midnight during every full moon, doomed to hunt and kill before returning to human form. Fear of the lobison was so rife in 19th Century Argentina that some families abandoned or even murdered baby boys – an atrocity that sparked the unusual Presidential practice of adoption, aimed at stopping the deadly stigma. Shlomo and Nehama Tawil, parents of seven boys, had written the President a letter in 1993 and got their wish this year, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported, attending the ceremony with their son and three of his brothers.

---

Headline: Apple to shut down Beats Music? Not so Apple says

Summary text: Apple is planning to discontinue Beats Music, the streaming music service that it acquired as part of an acquisition of Beats Electronics back in May. According to TechCrunch, multiple sources that include "several prominent employees at Apple and Beats" have confirmed that Apple is shutting down the music service. Many engineers from Beats Music have already been moved off the product and onto other projects at Apple, including iTunes. It's not clear when exactly Jimmy Iovine and Dr Dre's music service will be shut down or what Apple will do with streaming, but every source with knowledge of the situation that we talked to agreed Apple plans to sunset the Beats Music brand. Apple first acquired Beats Music in May, and at the time, announced plans to leave the music service untouched. There were no plans to integrate Beats Music into iTunes, with the company suggesting that it would remain as a standalone service. Apple shutting down Beats Music is unusual news given the efforts that the company has gone to in order to promote it in recent weeks, adding it to the list of "Apps Made by Apple" and recommending the app to new iOS users.